Case Study Part 2

The day before, Betty had finally agreed to go and speak with Cindy and seemed quite positive after the visit as an arrangement had been made for the children to come and visit her at the prison in three weeks' time.

Betty had engaged well and was in positive spirits after she left and for the rest of the afternoon.

You noticed this morning over breakfast she had seemed quite subdued and in a very different mood. She did not engage in the exercise program in the morning and sat looking at the ground. At times she appeared quite teary.

Betty has not come out for lunch and another inmate has told you she is very distressed about the children and is cutting herself.
